

2022 Connecticut Election Update

Brown Rudnick Government and Law Strategies, LP

Written: 11/09/22

While the results of many of the state election races are still being tallied, we wanted to send you a snapshot of where the results are at the moment.

Governor Lamont has been re-elected with over 55% of the vote - his Republican challenger Bob Stefanowski gained just under 44% of the vote.

The Democrats also swept the Congressional Offices.

US Senator Richard Blumenthal was also reelected with a similar margin of victory (57%-43%) over Republican Challenger Leora Levy.

Congresspersons Larson, Courtney, DeLauro and Himes all secured their reelections by comfortable margins but in the 5th congressional district Congresswoman Jahana Hayes holds a thin margin over her Republican challenger and former State Senator George Logan. With 95% of the vote counted she holds a 50.3% to 49.7% margin. There will likely be a recount in this race.

In the State General Assembly races - the Chambers remain largely similar to where they were pre-election - with large majorities for the Democrats.

In the State Senate - Democrats look to have picked up one seat (pending possible recounts in two races) to give them a 24-12 margin. Potential recounts in the open seat in former Senator Champagne's district and current Senator Ryan Fazio's district.

In the State House, the House Republicans, at this moment, look to have gained one seat to make a 96-55 Democrat majority. There are a number of races with razor thin margins and will likely need recounts.

We will update this when recounts are finalized but please feel free to reach out with any questions.
